Course Description:

Based on the works of John Maxwell we will examine multiple examples of what truly works in leadership and what fails and why it fails. Maxwell gives multiple examples of people who have led in business, medicine, the military, sports and government. He examines honestly, what builds trust, morale, and decency in any organization. His 21 laws are totally relatable to law enforcement work and leadership challenges.

The instructor will look at Maxwell's 21 laws in a workshop environment. Attendees will be able to see how they can apply and follow them towards subordinate growth and development.
