Alzheimer's disease is a community problem, especially when a person with Alzheimer's is missing. Searches are exhaustive, expensive and often have tragic endings. As the number of persons with Alzheimer's increases, the need for law enforcement intervention to assist this vulnerable population and their caregivers will also increase.

Course Description: This training curriculum was developed in response to the needs of the law enforcement and first responder community for continued education and understanding in order to face this growing community issue.

The training will be presented in four (4) blocks:

1. Understanding Alzheimer's Disease
2. Responding Effectively
3. Search and Rescue
4. Local Programming and Community Resources

Dress Code: Business Casual
