Against

David W Morse Defendant

In the Circuit Court of Jefferson County
Missouri

The plaintiffs doing business under the firm & style of Cano, Moense & Meyer state that the defendant by his promissory note herewith filed, dated January the 4th 1860 for value received promised the plaintiffs by the name of Cano, Moense & Meyer, to pay them one hundred and twenty nine dollars and ninety nine cents, four months after date thereof which with the interest is yet due & unpaid & for which plaintiffs demand judgment

And also the defendant by his promissory note herewith filed, dated January the 26 1860, promised plaintiffs by the name & style of Cano, Moense & Meyer, the sum of fifty seven dollars and forty four cents for value received, four months after date thereof which with the interest is due & unpaid & for which plaintiffs demand judgment

And also the defendant by his other promissory note herewith filed dated February the 8th 1860, promised the plaintiffs by the name and style of Cano Moense & Meyer to pay them the sum of one hundred and sixty two dollars and fifty five cents for value received, four months after date thereof which is still due & unpaid & for which plaintiffs demand judgment

And also defendant by his other promissory note herewith filed of date of 24th of February 1860, for value received, promised the plaintiffs by the name and style of Cuno, Meuse & Meyer to pay them the sum of forty one dollars and seventy eight cents, four months after date thereof, which is still due with the interest and unpaid and for which plaintiffs demand judgment

Plaintiffs aver that at the times of the execution of said notes, they were partners doing business at the city of St Louis under the firm and style of Cuno, Meuse & Meyer.
